Only One Member of Crew Killed In Explosion Near Australia.

Naval and Fishing Craft Aid In Saving Americans From Tragedy at Sea.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (U P) — The maritime commission announced today Frank H. Soll of Shelby, O., was among crew members rescued from the U. S. freighter, City of Bayville, which sunk near Australia, presumably after striking a mine.

(By United Press)

MELBOURNE, Australia—The United States freighter City of Rayville has been sunk by an explosion, presumably caused by a mine, with the loss of one member of its 38-man crew, naval Minister William Hughes announced today.

The scene of the sinking was off Cape Otway, Victoria. Belief that the American ship was mined was strengthened by the announcement that a British ship, unnamed, had been blown up under similar circumstances nearby yesterday, within 24 hours of the City of Rayville disaster.

One man of the British crew of 56 was lost when it went down an hour after an explosion.

As a result of the explosions, Hughes today ordered the Bass straits, separating Tasmania from the Australian mainland, closed to shipping until further notice.

It was assumed that a German submarine had sown the mines. Australian coastal waters would be far too dangerous for any German surface craft to approach, and are far beyond the range of any of Germany's mine-laying airplanes. Mines have been found off Australia several times during the war and occasionally shipse have struck them.

The American survivors lost all their belongings and most came ashore wearing only underclothes.

The first American casualty of the war at sea went down at one of the farthest points from home

Trapped Cat Saved By Detective With A Hammer, Chisel

There was one cat in Mansfield today who had only eight lives to go, after having escaped death yesterday through the quick masonry work of Detective Lee Remy.

Police were called to an East Fourth street residence yesterday on a report that a cat had been trapped between a water pipe and a stonewall in the basement of the home.

Remy answered the call and found the animal's head wedged between a water pipe and a sandstone wall. All of the detective's best "deducing" couldn't figure out how the cat got its head caught in that manner, but the more the kitty struggled to get loose the tighter its head became wedged in the trap.

There was no way of loosening the pipe without calling a plumber and the cat's full schedule of nine lives threatened to be called at one time unless it was released quickly.

Remy obtained a hammer and chisel and began chipping the stone from around the cat's head. A slip of either the hammer or the chisel would have taken a couple more lives.

When the channel in the stone wall became large enough to release the cat's head, it scampered away perily without so much as a grateful "meow."

Escapes Bombs

Adolf Hitler, speaking to the Nazi old guard in a Munich beer hall last night, barely escaped British bombs as RAF raiders attacked the city. The British estimated that bombs struck the beer hall only 14 minutes after Hitler had finished speaking. The Germans admitted the attack on Munich, but said damage was slight.

The Legion will be host at the evening program to the 400 young men in the county who are most likely to be called first under the selective service act. They will be entertained at a reception after Judge Huston's talk.

STUDIES 'CASE'

O. S. U. Psychologist Given Problem by Cop.

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — John H. Rowland, 32, assisant professor of psychology at Ohio State university, had a very personal "case" to study today.

He was speeding a fellow-member of the university staff, Keith Tayler, to a meeting here yesterday when Motorcycle Patrolman Albert Sander arrested Rowland for traveling 60 miles per hour in suburban Cincinnati.

When Rowland explained the reason for haste, the patrolman opened the siren on his cycle and escorted Rowland and Tyler the remainder of the way to the meeting.

Then, with siren silent, Sander escorted Rowland to the police station where the psychologist was charged with speeding and released under $100 bond.

BREAKS WINDOW

Empty Bottle Thrown Through Window of Mansfield Home.

John Dalton, 187 Vennum avenue, was sitting in his living room last night shortly before midnight when an empty whisky bottle came hurtling through the front window.

Dalton ran outside but saw no one on the sidewalk. A car with several young men and women in it was parked at the curb. They disclaimed any knowledge of the incident and said they had seen no one near the place. Dalton told police.

Child Slayer Guarded Closely From Crowd of Angry Neighbors

Family Friend Pets Young Girl, Then Kills Her.

NEW YORK — (U P) — Thomas Conroy, the "friend of the family" who strangled 10-year-old Genevieve Connelly and burned her, possibly while still alive, in a tenement house furnace, was guarded closely today against the wrath of the neighborhood.

A grim, whispering crowd loitered around the Bronx borough police station where he was held last night and one man hurled a brick through the station window. Detectives ran out and caught him. Another crowd collected outside the tenament where 38-year-old Conroy was janitor, while police sifted ashes from the furnace, recovering sufficient bones to establish a corpus delicti

Conroy had confessed that he killed the shy and beautiful child of Robert and Mary Connelly, whom he had known back in Athlone, West Meath county, Ireland and who had taken him into their home for meals many times last January when he was ill and out of work. He said he had seized the girl as she passed the tenament Wednesday evening after visiting a playmate, had fondled and kissed her against her will, and had carried her to the basement and disposed of her for fear she would tell her parents. He denied that he had raped her.

He confessed when confronted with a six-year-old girl on whom he had put his hands in the tenement hallway last spring, and with Mrs. Connelly, who pleaded with him: "Tommy, if you know anything about Jen, I ask you, for God's sake and from a mother's heart, to speak up."

He said that the child kicked and screamed when he embraced her and that he carried her to the basement, threw her on a coal pile and choked her.

"She made gurgling sounds and I pressed her throat until she stopped," he said.

New York police today sifted ashes from a tenement furnace searching for bones of missing 10-year-old Genevieve Connelly after Thomas Conroy, a "friend of the family," confessed he fondled the girl, choked her to death, and then burned her body.

MEET ON GRADE CROSSING PLAN

City, State Officials Confer Next Week on B. & O., And Erie Project.

Another step toward making the Baltimore & Ohio and Erie railroad crossing elimination program on West Fourth street road a reality will be taken Tuesday when Mayor W. J. Locke and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton go to Columbus to confer with state officials on the city's share of cost of the project.

While there the two officials will also discuss with state officials two other projects, improvement of the airport with WPA funds and rerouting of trucks through the city.

Locke said today that he and Crafton will have a conference with Hal G Sours, new head of the highway department, on the probable cost of property damage

Coaches to Call Signals on Field In Huddle.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas—(AP)—Football officials at St. Mary's have taken steps to see that there aren't any arguments about whether the coaches are calling the plays in the game with Oklahoma City university—they're announcing publicly they'll do just that.

As an experiment, Coaches Mose Simms of St. Mary's and Ossie Doenges of Oklahoma City will participate in the huddles of their respective teams and get to the sidelines before play starts.

DUCE COMPLAINS

Italian Press Turns Against Swiss on Air Raids.

BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—Italy turned the wrath of her press and radio on Switzerland today for alleged "indifference" to the flight of British bombing planes over neutral Swiss territory en route to Italian objectives.

But, asked some Swiss newspapers, if the Axis cannot stop British night raiders in their three-hour flight over German-occupied territory, how can the Swiss be blamed for not halting them when they are over Swiss territory only half an hour.

The Italian complaints came almost simultaneously with prolonged air raid alarms last night in Bern, Geneva and other Swiss cities.

RESERVES CALLED

BUDAPEST — (NS) — Neutral Turkey has called up all available reserves, reports reaching Budapest said today.

CONGRESS SEES RISE IN TAXES

Boost In Income and Business Levies Expected In New Structure.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Sweeping revision of the entire federal tax structure, including a sharp upward boost in individual income and some business taxes, was foreseen today in congressional circles as highly probable in the next congress.

The tax changes are expected to follow approval of an increase in the debt limit from $60,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000. Congressional leaders predicted approval of the debt limit boost in January.

The treasury already has endorsed the principle of a study of the entire federal tax problem, including its relation to state and local taxes and simplification of the tax structure. Republican congressional leaders in tax affairs also have urged such a study.

An increase in the normal individual income tax is inevitable if the government is to raise huge sums in taxes for the national defense program, congressional tax experts said.

BOYS CONFESS LONG LIST OF THRILL CRIMES

Arson Losses of $1,000,000 Chalked Up Against Four Youngsters.

PLANNED SLUGGING

13-Year-Old Carried Pair of 'Rods' In Case Police Discovered One.

SANTA ROSA, Cal — (U P) — Police today asked four boys—two of them 13, the others 11 and 12, respectively—to repeat for District Attorney Toland McGettigan confessions to holdups, purse-snatchings, petty thefts and a million dollars worth of arson, "just for the thrill of it."

Police Chief Melvin Flohr was, at first, reluctant to believe the confessions. But his files listed cases of arson in which hotels, stores, factories and lumberyards valued at more than $1,000,000 had been destroyed since 1936. One of the cases had been solved

Moreover, Flohr said, 13-year-old Eddie Gonzales, leader of the gang, had volunteered the information that he and his "pals" had planned to slug night desk Sergeant H. D. Huntington and steal the impounded belongings of prisoners in the city jail.

Eddie and his gang, consisting of Vernon Cohen, 13, his brother, Erland, 12 and Bobby Jones, 11, have been in trouble with juvenile court authorities for nearly six years, Flohr said.

Eddie was arrested Thursday when he was found with a stolen bicycle. After being questioned at length on petty matters, he suddenly "broke," Flohr said, and admitting firing, with the gang's aid, the Laws Lumber company yards, the Pacific Gas and Electric company, the Hotel Occidental annex, the big Rosenberg department store and the Cleveland Brothers' packing plant.

The other three youngsters were arrested, but for nearly 24 hours derided Eddie's story as "applesauce." Then, Flohr said, they were questioned separately and each confessed substantially the same things.

Eddie told about hiding in a park, grabbing a woman's purse and pedaling away furiously. He had held up another woman in the WASHINGTON — (AP) — The total of votes cast for President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie in Tuesday's election mounted to 48,238,481 in today's latest unofficial tabulation, indicating that the final presidential count, covering also minor party candidates, would be close to 50,000,000.

The final 1936 total was 45,647,117.

The latest tabulation showed that President Roosevelt received 26,361,762 votes and Willkie 21,876,719 in 120,620 of the country's 127,245 voting units, making Mr. Roosevelt's plurality 4,485,043.

The electoral vote standing remained unchanged with the president having 449 electoral votes from 38 states and Willkie 82 from 10 states.

FATE UNKNOWN

Nothing Heard From Steamer Since S. O. S. Call.

NEW YORK — (NS) — Fate of the British steamer Ridley, a merchant vessel of 4,993 tons, remained unknown today after Mackay radio last night picked up distress calls from the ship stating it was on fire in the Atlantic 340 miles west of the Cape Verde Islands.

The SOS message said the Ridley required immediate assistance.

HUNTER MISSING

Raiders Arrive After Fuehrer Finishes Talk

Munich Beer Hall Putsch Celebration Started Four Hours Early, Saving Nazi Leader; Other Targets In Reich Attacked.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(INS)—Following quickly in the wake of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's statement last night that Germany will not agree to any compromise peace but will fight on to final victory, it was learned today that important Russo-German conversations are likely to take place in Berlin next week.

(By United Press)

LONDON—British bombing planes arrived over Munich 14 minutes after Adolf Hitler was due to make a speech there last night and remained for more than an hour and a half, dropping heavy bombs on military targets, it was asserted authoritatively today.

Earlier, usually reliable informants had said that British planes heavily bombed military objectives in the Munich area at an early hour when it was believed Hitler and leading Nazi party members were still celebrating the 17th anniversary of their beer cellar putsch there.

The air ministry announced that British planes, following up their heavy raid on the great Krupp armaments works the night before, had attacked industrial targets in Italy and communications and other objectives in Germany last night.

Informants said the first British bombing planes arrived in the Munich area before 9 p. m. (3 p m EST; 10 p. m German time).

(According to German sources Hitler spoke for about an hour starting soon after 6 p. m. German time. It had been arranged to re-broadcast his speech from records starting at about 8 20 p. m. German time. Without explanation the re-broadcast was cancelled.

(Geneva, Switzerland, had three air raid alarms during the evening, Berne, the capital, had two and Zurich had one.

(A United Press Zurich dispatch reported that British planes made a fierce attack on Friedrichshafen, home of the Dornier airplane works on Lake Constance, 115 miles west of Munich.)

Besides attacking the Munich area and other targets in Germany, it was understood that the British planes had attacked the great industrial Milan-Turin-Genoa industrial triangle in which most of the Italian war industry is centered.

The British planes which attacked Italy were believed to have achieved their objective, informants said, and to have returned to bases without loss.

British raiders attacked vital objectives at Milan and Turin in Italy, the air ministry said.

For the second successive night "aircraft of the coastal command made a concentrated attack on the German submarine base at Lorient (France) with good results," the ministry's communique said.

All planes returned from the raid.

Among the objectives attacked at Turin was an aircraft factory and at Milan the British bombed the Pirelli magneto works.

"Our bombers also attacked a large number of important targets in Germany and enemy-occupied territory, including oil refineries at Gelsenkirchen and Frankfurt, aircraft factories at Nurnberg and Amsterdam, goods yards at Hamm, Soest, Osnabruck, Duisburg, Ruhrort and the Hook of Holland, railway communications at Stuttgart, Mors, Saarbrucken, Mainz and Le

TRAPPED: Entire Division Of Italians Near Surrender

(By Associated Press)

ATHENS—An entire Italian division—perhaps 15,000 men—was reported in informed quarters today to have been trapped by Greece's defenders in the Pindus mountains and its capitulation only a matter of hours.

The troops were identified as Premier Mussolini's famed Centaur division and it was said hundreds of the men including the commanding general, had been taken prisoner.

The action was one of a series in which Greek sources said counter-attacking mountain troops had thrown the Italian invasion machine into reverse all along the 100-mile front.

The remainder of the division, said to be without food and other supplies, was scattered throughout the mountains inside a circle formed by Greek troops. Heavy Italian guns and a large quantity of war materials were dumped into a ravine to prevent capture by the Greeks, one source said.

Military experts said the predicament of the division was due both to an Italian blunder and brilliant Greek strategy. The Italians, trying to make a lightning thrust at a strategic road running into

HAPPY: Churchill Pleased By Re-Election of Roosevelt

(By United Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, congratulating President Roosevelt on his re-election, said today that "We shall now receive the . . . products of the . . . matchless workshops . . . of the American union."

Speaking at inauguration of Sir George Wilkinson as the new lord mayor of London, the prime minister said that Great Britain's successful resistance and victory had been proclaimed by all parties in the United States. He referred to Mr. Roosevelt as "the illustrious American statesman who never failed to give us a helping hand."

Inauguration of the lord mayor lacked traditional color. Because of the war Wilkinson, accompanied by aldermen, sheriffs and common councillors in civil robes, drove to the law courts in automobiles instead of the gold coaches of past years.

Following the inauguration there was the lord mayor's banquet at Mansion house, where Churchill spoke.

"The week now ending brought us a message from cross the ocean of utmost encouragement and good cheer," he said.

"We offer heartfelt congratulations to President Roosevelt, who has received an unprecedented mark of American confidence in being chosen for a third time to lead his mighty people forward," Churchill said.

"We shall now receive the support of the products of the gigantic munitions productions and

War Department Insists Upon Wage-Hour Standards

SHARE POLICY ON AIRPLANES DECIDED UPON

40 Bombers For Britain In Next Few Weeks Seen As Possibility.

WASHINGTON — Maintenance of wage and hour standards on defense projects was put down today as a primary concern of the war department in its efforts to press forward the nation's rearmament program.

There must be no relaxation of these standards, the department declared, if the program is to move "effectively forward."

Referring directly to construction of thousands of army cantonments in preparation for expansion of the land forces, Robert P Patterson, assistant secretary of war, issued last night a declaration setting forth that general labor policy and calling for payment of overtime in factories where a longer than normal work week is necessary to production.

The statement topped off a series of defense developments which started with President Roosevelt's press conference disclosure that roughly half of the output of American war materials, including the latest type of big bombers, was being made available to the British.

If the sharing policy, which Mr. Roosevelt emphasized was but a rule-of-thumb standard, is applied strictly to current big bomber production Britain may get about 40 of these formidable planes in the next few weeks. Authorities here believed that about 80 or more would be out of the factory by December.

In another development, the priorities board granted the British purchasing commission the right to buy 12,000 additional planes of various types in this country, bringing to 26,000 the number of military aircraft for which they have placed American orders.

Meanwhile, an effort to aid the British along financial lines was started at the capital by Senator King (D-Utah), who introduced a bill to permit them to buy American farm products on credit, by modifying the Johnson act which prohibits loans or credits to a nation in default on its World war debts.

The war department's policy, Patterson said, conforms with that of World war years when union wage scales, a standard work day and time and one-half for overtime were required. Moreover, he said, it is in line with the basic government labor polcy of a five-day, 40-hour work week as set forth in labor laws and in policy statements of President Roosevelt and the defense commission.

Bittinger Happy Over Results of Election In Ohio

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)—Democratic State Chairman J. Freer Bittinger said today that the party could be "deeply gratified" with some results of the election in Ohio despite the loss of senatorial and gubernatorial contests.

Besides the "vote of confidence" given President Roosevelt in the state, Bittinger noted the Democrats had increased by one, offices under their control in the state house, retained a Democratic member on the state supreme court, and reduced Republican advantages in the legislature and the Ohio congressional delegation.

"To be sure we regret the loss of our gubernatorial, senatorial and those of our state and county tickets who were not elected, but we elected candidates to state, district, judicial and county offices in such numbers as to prove most conclusively that the Democratic party is and will remain as a dominant political force in the state," he said.

FIND MURDERED VICTIM IN CAR

WARREN — (NS) — Shot four times, the body of John J. Sivillo, 26, of Cleveland, was found today slumped over the wheel of an automobile on a lonely road 13 miles northeast of Warren.

Wade McRoberts, a Republic Steel company employe, made the discovery on his way to work. Coroner John C. Henshaw of Warren said Sivillo had been shot twice through the head, once in the stomach and in the hip. He had been dead since about midnight, Henshaw said.

There is reason to believe that the two deer which have been running over Richland county in the past two years have had a blessed event sometime within the past year for now a young doe makes its appearance. A. W. Herman and F. W. Vent, who operate the Sam Vining farm near Ontario, were sitting at the edge of the woods one day this week when a small doe came out of the woods, looked at them curiously for a few seconds and then turned back into the woods without any sign of fear or excitement.

County Game Protector C. I. Kimmel today was chuckling over the antics of the duck hunters out at Charles Mill dam. Yesterday, Kimmel said, a hunter approached him and asked how fast the ducks could fly. Kimmel, noticing that the hunter had already bagged one, told him that he seemed to be doing all right, judging from the performance of the other hunters. The hunter, however, told him that the only reason he got the duck was that he had fired on the leader of a flock and, much to his amazement, had brought down the duck bringing up the rear. Altogether the hunter had fired 52 shots and had bagged one duck—by mistake.

TAX PAYMENTS IN GOOD START

$27,226 Received In First Two Days of Collection On Personal Property.

Richland county's second-half personal tax collection was off to a good start today with $27,226 paid two days after the books opened.

That figure, however, includes advance payments made before the books officially opened Thursday. The collection for the final half of the year will continue until Dec. 7. After that date a penalty will be added.

Personal tax payments during the first half payment period last spring amounted to more than $100,000, leaving $145,718 still to be collected this fall.

Of the taxes still due, $119,787 is general personal tax on tangible property and $25,931 represents levies due on intangibles, or investments.

County Treasurer John E. Kolb and his staff mailed statements this week to property owners who still owe taxes. Others paid for the entire year during the collection last spring when their property was listed by the county auditor.

Personal tax must be paid on factory and office equipment, livestock and farming implements, household goods, jewelry and other personal property and stocks and securities.

FOUR INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS IN RICHLAND AREA

Four persons were injured, two of them Mansfielders, in traffic accidents in Mansfield and Richland county area during the past 24 hours.

The two Mansfielders were W. B. Mowery, 164 Raleigh avenue, in General hospital today with concussions and lacerations of the face; and Beryl Bartrom, 106 Raleigh avenue, confined to his home today with bruises.

Police said that Mowery was found at the corner of Raleigh and Harter avenues this morning, apparently hit by a motorist or the victim of an accident of another nature. Mowery was too dazed this morning to give details, police said.

Bartrom was injured on Route 30-N, a mile west of Mansfield last night, when his auto was sideswiped by another automobile and crashed through a guard rail, he told highway patrolmen. Patrolmen today were searching for the other vehicle, which did not stop at the scene of the accident.

Also injured in traffic accidents yesterday were W. W. Scholle, 58, of Brady Lake, treated in Good Samaritan hospital, Galion, for fractured ribs; and Emil Komenda, 20, of Parma, treated in Ashland City hospital for head cuts and a nose injury. Neither are in serious condition.

Scholle was injured when the car in which he was riding got out of control and upset on Route 161, two miles north of Galion yesterday.

COAL MINERS SUSPECTED IN DEATH OF TWO

Intended Victim Testified Against Workers During Compensation Cases.

(By United Press)

SCRANTON, Pa. — An anthracite region secret society believed to be connected with a number of recent bombings in this area was investigated by officials today in their search for assassins who placed a bomb in the automobile of Dr. E. H. Rebhorn, killing two of his children.

District Attorney Michael J. Eagen revealed that the society, the name of which was not disclosed, was under close scrutiny. At the same time Eagen said that every hard coal miner against whom Dr. Rebhorn testified in workmen's compensation cases also was being investigated.

The victims of the bomb-murder were William, 19, and Lois, 17, children of Dr. Rebhorn, Scranton public health director. They were blown to death on Thursday night as they entered their father's automobile to go on an errand.

Police said the bomb apparently had been set to detonate when the front door of the automobile was opened. Detectives found a top of a tin can which led them to believe the bomb was manufactured from high explosive placed in such a container.

One suspect, an employe dismissed a month ago from the Scranton contagious diseases hospital, was released last night after hours of questioning by police. Officials refused to reveal the identity of the man but said there was "little chance" he was connected with the case.

Several parts of the bomb, which splattered over a wide area of the fashionable hill section, were taken to Philadelphia in an effort to determine the type of explosive used.

The wrecked Rebhorn automobile was examined exhaustively by police who sought fingerprints which might result in a clue to the murderers.

While some officials believed the bomb might have been intended for a coal official whose home, a block away from the Rebhorn's, was bombed in 1933. Eagen discounted that theory.

Not That It Matters

A Tip on What To Do Next Time on Levy and Other Thoughts About Election

—By JANE WILLIAMS

WHILE disappointed candidates are picking up the pieces, let's take a look at the wreck of the one-mill levy and "mend our fences" for another year.

Since everyone hates that odious "I told you so," we won't hark back to the prediction in this column two months ago that an omnibus levy would never pass. It didn't take much of a prophet to predict it, simply because it came under the heading of increased taxes.

While everything which was intended to be covered by the levy was something that Mansfield—or any growing city—needed, only one item could be labeled an absolute necessity, and that was the new fire equipment. During the campaign I heard many persons say they wouldn't vote for the levy for this reason and that, but everyone admitted we needed fire equipment.

I am certain that a bond issue to purchase that equipment would have passed, just as I am equally certain that a levy for playgrounds, park improvement, and air port maintenance would not have passed at this time. (Funds for additional police are a necessity, too, but most voters believed this would be forthcoming from the new parking meters.)

So then, it seems to me that the philosophical thing to do is accept the situation and set about proposing a bond issue for fire equipment at the next city election. I'll bet it will be accepted by voters.

MOST interesting race between local candidates was that of county representative, and being a romanticist I have a hunch that Dan Cupid had something to do with it.

The two candidates were almost identical in background; both young, ambitious, good looking attorneys; both had practiced law two years in Mansfield, and had studied at Ohio State, both had been abroad, each had a wide circle of friends. There was nothing little or mean that could truthfully be said of either. Yet the Republican won in a local Democratic landslide.

There was this difference: the winner will lead one of Mansfield's lovelies down the aisle next week, a fact that has been quite generally known for some weeks. And if all the world loves a love story, it's quite probable that Mansfield voters were influenced by it, and remembered that success is a lovely gift to lay at a lady's feet.

ELECTION Postmortems: Only person I know who made four separate election bets and collected on all of them is your Main Street Correspondent, to wit: four pairs of nylon hose. A sweeping loss on all four would have meant wearing half-socks all winter. . .

Biggest loser in the election gambles was John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chieftain, who staked his job and prestige and lost. But Mr. Lewis won't have to wear anklets this winter. . . .

Only Roger Babson would have taken time the day after election to have figured out that a tiny one per cent of the Roosevelt majority vote redistributed could have swung the election to Willkie. . . .

Chet Keyes, former Mansfield lad, running for prosecutor in Kansas City on the Republican ticket, was snowed under. Voters had nothing against him—there just weren't enough Republicans. Vice versa in the case of Clarence Dill, formerly of Fredericktown, who was the defeated Democratic candidate for governor of Washington.

IF WAR should be declared by the United States within the next two years, it would complete an unusual cycle for Jeanette Rankin of Missoula, Mont. Miss Rankin, first woman ever elected to the national congress, was in the House when Woodrow Wilson asked for a vote on a declaration of war against Germany in 1917. Weeping openly on the floor of the House, she kept her pre-election pledges of her constituents and voted against the war—one of the very few who did.

Perhaps the mothers of Montana remembered how Miss Rankin kept faith with them 23 years ago—and hoped that she would do so again.

AN ORIENTAL paradise for $17 a month—that's what the government will provide for the Chinese population of San Francisco. Last week the president approved a $1,250,000 housing project which will replace some of the dingy, illy lighted apartment houses in Chinatown.

It will be a strange oriental oasis in the occidental city. There will be a golden gate and towers of ivory, and inside the gate will be dwarfed trees and lily ponds. Temple towers on the roof will top the ivory colored concrete, but greatest of all the luxuries will be—you can't guess — nickel-in-the-slot wash machines for Chinese families!

And to dwell in this celestial place, Chinese have only to pay $17 to $21 a month.

RAIDERS ARRIVE AFTER FUEHRER FINISHES TALK

Havre and 18 enemy airdromes," the ministry said.

Berlin Reports Raid Too Late

MUNICH —(AP)— British bombs plummeted down on Munich last night "sometime after" Fuehrer Adolf Hitler had addressed his Nazi party comrades in a confident speech commemorating the 17th anniversary of the beer hall putsch, informed Berlin sources acknowledged today.

They emphasized that Hitler had completed his address in which he declared that Germany is "prepared for the future as never before," and "strong enough to meet any combination in the world" before Royal Air Force raiders arrived.

(The British press association said "it can quite be easily imagined that those assembled in the beer hall to listen to Hitler were undoubtedly disturbed.")

The Berlin sources said Munich citizens were forced to take shelter in their cellars during the raid.

Surrounded by the Nazi party's "old guard," Hitler declared in his stormy speech that German production capacity is the highest in the world and that the German army, the "best military instrument of the world, is uninterruptedly trained and improved."

He promised certain victory for the Reich in the war.

He spoke sarcastically of the United States as "the land of unlimited freedom," adding that "every emigrant must pass an unusually difficult examination before permission is given him to tread the sacred soil of democracy, although scarcely 10 persons to the square kilometer live there.

"As far as American production goes," he said with sarcasm, "one cannot event represent it with astronomical figures.

"But I can assure you that German production capacity is the highest in the world. . . . For we are today in a position to mobilize the powers of almost all Europe. . . . Our reserves are so great that I must stop production in many fields because there is no possibility of storing these masses now."

He indicated that the Reich, as a result of this stop order, had freed additional industrial facilities for airplane production.

Around him as he spoke behind closed doors in the Lowenbraeu beer cellar where leaders of the party and survivors of both the 1923 putsch and the bomb explosion which rocked Buergerbrau hall a year ago only a short time after Hitler had left. He made no mention of that incident last night.

The fuehrer rejected all thought of compromise in the war and declared:

"I imagine that I am not only the hardest man which the German nation has had for decades, perhaps centuries, but in addition I possess the greatest authority."

He dangled the threat of intensified air and submarine warfare before the British, and declared "we will see who is blockaded in a few months; we or the others."

Hitler Predicts German Victory

BERLIN —(INS)— Nazi Germany today celebrated the 17th anniversary of Adolf Hitler's Munich beer hall putsch while the fuehrer's prediction of ultimate victory over Britain and his rejection of "any compromise" resounded through the Reich.

Addressing Nazi party veterans in the Loewenbraeu beer cellar amid salvoes of "heils" and thunderous applause, Hitler said the war would end only when Germany achieves the final triumph.

Asserting that Germany's war machine is the "world's first," Hitler belittled the airplane production capacity of Britain, Canada and Australia.

"Today I reject any compromise," he declared.

"Germany with her ally (Italy) is strong enough to meet any combination of powers in this world. There is no coalition of powers with might to match ours.

"The fight will go on until the German people end it by our victory. . . .

"As supreme commander, I am personally certain that the victory will be ours."

By these words Hitler scotched any idea that Germany is making advances aimed at possible peace and dispelled all expectations of a possible axis "peace offensive."

The wealthy physician was believed the target of the plot.

MEET ON GRADE CROSSING PLAN

along the right-of-way for the Baltimore & Ohio project.

After more than a year of discussion between the city and the state on the proposed highway improvements, the state recently offered Mansfield an opportunity to obtain the project by paying 85 per cent of the property damage costs along the right-of-way within the city limits and 85 per cent of paving costs from the point where the present new paving ends to the overhead bridge approach. It was tentatively estimated that the property damage might amount to $48,000.

Locke said he hoped to have state engineers give him a definite figure on the property damage before the proposition is submitted to city council.

The improvement plans include an overhead grade separation at the Baltimore & Ohio crossing and an underpass at the Erie tracks, with a four-lane highway between.

While in Columbus the two officials will confer with James Kelley, district director of WPA, on the airport improvement. Kelley requested that they bring with them the city's plans for the proposed improvement.

Rerouting of interstate truck traffic through Mansfield was one of the recommendations of the Citizens committee's traffic survey and officials will ask the advice of state and district highway officials concerning the plan before it is presented to city council, Locke said.

Volunteer Rush Believed Filling Army Draft Quota

So many young men are volunteering for a year of army training that it may not be necessary to draft any men in Ohio and the rest of the nation until next spring, selective service officials announced today.

With the nation-wide quota for the winter set at 800,000 men, it was believed that enough men will have volunteered by next June to virtually fill the quota. The army plans to have 400,000 in training camps by next March and another 400,000 by June.

The first Ohio quota is 996 men who will be inducted into the army Nov. 19. It was expected that nine men will go from Richland county.

The response of volunteers will lighten the load of the local draft boards in classifying registrants. Volunteers will be classified to determine that none have dependents or physical defects, or are needed in industry. But the investigation will not be as detailed as in the case of those being examined for draft.

Volunteers would not be likely to appeal from a classification, whereas in the case of persons who do not want to go into the army it would be necessary to determine whether their claims for deferment are justified.

ports that American ships travel —120 miles off the Australian south coast.

The crew, under command of Capt. Arthur T. Cronin, respondoned calmly to the emergency. They lowered life boats without panic into a choppy sea after a blast had torn a huge hole forward and enveloped the vessel in flames.

The only death was that of the third engineer, named Bryan. The other 37 members of the crew were rescued by Australian naval and fishing craft, guided by the fire, before the ship went down, standing on her nose, an hour after the explosion.

Survivors said the explosion was "like hitting a brick wall." They brought ashore with them two pieces of metal that had been blown into a life boat. Capt. Cronin, who has commanded the Rayville for 12 years, said the metal did not come from the ship.

The Rayville was of 5,883 tons, built at Tampa, Fla., 1920, owned by the United States maritime commission and chartered by the American Pioneer line, which is owned by the United States lines. She plied between Nek York and Australia with general cargo.

State Officials Withhold Comment

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— State department officials withheld immediate comment early today on the sinking of the United States freighter City of Rayville pending a study of official reports.

They had received only a fragmentary report of the accident from the American consul at Melbourne and press dispatches of the Australian naval minister's announcement.

Maritime commission officials were checking its records and hoped to have a list of crew members within a few hours.

Officials here pointed out that there was little action that this country could take in the matter. Although Australia is a belligerent, the waters surrounding it have not been designated a combat zone such as those around Europe.

The road to baldness is well marked by abnormal hair loss, various forms of dandruff, soreness of scalp, itching, dryness, etc. Heed these warnings. ACT NOW!

Bald-No-More removes the cause of baldness and revitalizes the source of hair growth. The natural result is abundant healthy hair.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and you might also pass the suggestion along to the children.

With the campaign ended it may be anticipated that tomatoes and eggs will now resume their dietary roles instead of substituting for political arguments.

Michigan goes for Willkie and elects a Democratic governor while Ohio goes for Roosevelt and elects a Republican governor—if you are interested in trying to figure things out.

State Election Customs

THERE were really 48 elections last Tuesday. The Council of State Governments is the authority for information that the people of this country cast their ballots under 48 different systems. Each state has its own form of ballot and election rules.

Three states do not even have the Australian secret ballot, but use "party papers" put out by each party for itself. Three states have separate sets of ballots for national, state and county candidates. In 25 states everything is on one huge sheet of paper, from president down to small, local tax levies.

One state takes care of its local issues in September and has nothing but presidential electors to trouble its collective head with on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. One state votes on national issues in even years and state matters in odd years, so the November balloting is always comparatively simple.

The interesting thing about the situation is the reminder it carries that the United States is a federation of independent commonwealths. We know it, but we forget it most of the time. In many matters these 48 states seek uniform action for mutual benefit, but they have attained it in very limited degree. And they can go on being independent and different in many ways as long as they wish.

Difficult Job Well Done

WHEN Sidney L. Palmer is permitted to retire from his post as Community Fund secretary he will be entitled to the feeling of satisfaction that comes from realization that a difficult job has been well done and that all who know him are his friends and well-wishers.

Mr. Palmer (or "Sid," as he would probably prefer) has resigned as secretary because he feels that ill health will make it impossible to continue to perform the duties of that office.

All who know of the earnest attention and sympathetic interest which Mr. Palmer carried to the tasks involved in the supervision and office management of the Community Fund during the ten years he has served as secretary, will regret his withdrawal from the position for which he was peculiarly fitted by experience, temperament and character.

His interest in the Community Fund, and the work of the agencies to which it contributed, was evidenced long before he was chosen secretary, at the nominal salary which that position pays, as he was among the volunteer workers when the Community Chest plan was adopted in Mansfield twenty-two years ago.

It was under Mr. Palmer's direction, also, that the "clearing house" method of eliminating duplication of work of various Community Fund agencies was introduced, so that each case coming to the office can be referred to the proper agency for attention.

Having passed his seventieth milestone last June 1, it is the hope of his many friends that freedom from the responsibilities he has felt in connection with his work will afford relaxation and change that will be beneficial to his health—and that happiness and contentment may fill his sunset years.

Tacoma's Home Defense Plan

THE QUESTION of looking after home defense with the National Guard away at training camps for at least a year has been answered by citizens of Tacoma. They are organizing a home defense corps with ground forces, cavalry and a harbor defense group they call their "navy." The commanding officer is a retired major general.

The Tacoma defense group will be trained for all emergencies, including flood, earthquake, fire, war, rescue work, and so on. Evacuation leaders and guards against sabotage may not be called upon for war duty, but they may have a peacetime job worth doing which will fit them for the other if it should come.

The cavalry units will patrol power transmission lines and guard dams, reservoirs, bridges and highways. The navy, composed of yacht club members and their boats, will patrol the shorelines near shipbuilding yards, chemical plants, gasoline depots and other vital centers.

It is to be a civilian army, comparable to England's Air Raid Precaution group. Ex-service men head the district units into which the corps is divided.

It is a carefully worked-out plan, and may be widely copied in the coming weeks and months by other cities.

Franco's Ambitious Designs

NOT MANY years ago, when Spain was still a republic with one of the most enlightened constitutions of modern times, a distinguished Spanish scholar forecast his country's happiness and prosperity because its "days of imperialism were ended." It no longer sought world power, but only world co-operation and the good of its own people.

That view is not held by Spain's rulers today. Franco's government has set up a "Council of Hispanicism" to tighten the bonds with Latin-America. The idea is to persuade the people of the New World, who once threw off the Spanish yoke, that they are Spain's brothers today.

Franco is the third foreign dictator to embark on such a campaign. Hitler and Mussolini preceded him in trying to persuade them to full co-operation with the Nazi and Fascist regimes. The thrust of ultimate submission to foreign dictation is veiled but shows through extreme trade pressure, propaganda and fifth column activity.

Actions speak louder than words. In that lies our opportunity to succeed where the dictators fail. If our actions continue to be unselfish and genuinely co-operative, for the benefit of all Americas, great nations no more than weak ones, our words of friendship can be believed.

Word comes that a Boston woman, aged 105 years, was seriously burned when her gown caught fire from a cigaret she was smoking in bed—which should be a lesson to her.

You can't fool all of the people all of the time—but the percentage is still quite high.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff: That new show, "Panama Hattie," is a sort of Sailor Beware, with music. . . . It's about some sailors in Panama who go a.w.o.l. . . . Knowing they'll be court martialed, if caught, they try to salvage the situation by attempting to capture a ring of spies. . . . It's very earthy and bawdy.

If you stick your head out your office window and scan the skies for five minutes, the odds are 6 to one that you will see a plane . . . LaGuardia Field has 250 arrivals and take-offs daily.

The week's dumbest gag concerns the drunk who was on the 18th floor of a building. He wanted to go up to the 36th floor. Ringing for the elevator, he said, "36th floor," and stepped into an empty elevator shaft, falling 18 floors to the ground. Scrambling to his feet he indignantly cried, "I said UP!"

THERE are many fine passenger trains in the U. S. but only three are named for women. They are Nellie Bly, Ann Rutledge and Pocahontas. Nellie was a newspaper woman who established a record by going around the world (in 1889) in 72¼ days. . . . Ann Rutledge was an inn-keeper's daughter whose name is linked romantically with Lincoln. . . . Pocahontas was the Indian girl who saved Capt. John Smith's life. . . . But only the "Nellie Bly" touches New York. It plies between Manhattan and Atlantic City.

The general release of "Gone With the Wind" is supposed to take place sometime in January, and MGM says not one foot of the original will be cut. . . It'll be booked into theaters at about half the road show fare.

You like bowling? . . . Meyer Davis, Clark Gable, Bob Hope, and Bing Crosby are opening a new one to go with the other nine they already own. . . . Broadway's newest character is Daniel Boone . . . he walks around in a leather suit, a coonskin cap, and a rusty old squirred rifle . . . Takes it everywhere he goes, including the best restaurants and nightclubs.

THE break-up of their marriage has never set well on Jack Dempsey's shoulders. News photographs of Dempsey in Hannah's presence show him morose and downcast. Recently she met him at the airport after he had taken their two children on a visit to his mother in the west. Questioned about the separation, Dempsey growled: "It wasn't anything I wanted."

Watch for a song called "Dream Valley" . . . Irving Berlin says it the prettiest he's heard all year. . . . For the first time in her life, Ethel Waters is dancing in public. Formerly she let it go by acting and crooning dusky-voiced laments . . . In "Cabin In the Sky" she does all three.

This Is Ohio

TO SETH ADAMS, a progressive Zanesville farmer belongs the honor of importing the first "blue blooded" sheep for breeding in the state.

He brought a pair of Spanish Merinos from France in 1801 and added them to his flock of native sheep. The first pair Adams sold was to Judge Todd of Kentucky for $1,500.

It wasn't long before other farmers began searching eastern markets for improved breeds, and soon flocks of South Down, Leicester and Saxon appeared. Since then farmers and stock-raisers of Ohio have produced some of the world's finest strains of sheep.

MEMORY LANE

Recalling Days of the 1917 Draft

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If you don't think a lot of water has run under the culverts since the last draftees went off to camp, just listen to what the boys in those days (the summer and fall of 1917) were talking about when they mustered in for their first introduction to squads-right, squads-left, huu-um-mph!

The Chicago White Sox, behind the pitching of such chaps as Cicotte and the fielding and batting of Eddie Collins and Shoeless Joe Jackson, took the World Series from the over-confident New York Giants, winning the first, second, fifth and sixth games.

Stocks and bonds were doing a nose dive to new lows and the Wall streeters were screaming. . . . There were investigations being started of war profiteers. . . . Lenin and Trotsky were the big shots of the Russian revolution and Bolshevik was a new word. . . . Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Treat returned from France and predicted that the World war would end in the fall of 1918.

Glenn Warner (nobody called him "Pop" then) stirred up a pigskin hornet's nest by announcing that football was not as rough as it used to be. . . . Fuel to the football flame was added when Army called off its annual classic with the Navy.

No G-Men Then.

THE "federal men" (whoever heard of G-men then) rounded up a slew of I. W. W.'s . . . Dresses were down to the ankle and the "modern maiden's" shoes laced as high as the hem of her skirt or she was out of style. . . . The waltz and the naughty "Bunny Hug" were all the ballroom fashion. . . . The Castles set the pace on the hardwood. . . . Jazz was a brand-new word and "flapper" was just beginning to have a new meaning.

Wheat was selling for $1.18 cents on the Chicago Board of Trade and farmers in the dust bowl (of the 1930's) were planting every foot of ground they could find. . . . John McCormack was a sell-out at Carnegie hall and spending all his spare time selling Liberty Bonds.

Theda Bara was knocking them into the aisles in "Cleopatra." . . . Mary Pickford was America's Sweetheart in "Bebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." . . . Douglas Fairbanks was sending the boys in khaki home happy with "The Man from Painted Post." . . . Pauline Frederick, Marguerite Clark and Sessue Hawakaya were packing them in almost as thick as William S. Hart. . . . Especially if they had with them on the bill a two-reeler with that funny little fellow, Charlie Chaplin.

Another Tyrone Power.

TYRONE POWER (Sr.) and Florence Reed had them by the heels with the tuneful "Chu Chin Chow." . . . Raymond Hitchcock, Leon Errol and Irene Bordoni were doing just as well with "Hitchy-Koo." . . . Peggy Wood was breaking hearts in "Maytime." . . . John and Lionel Barrymore and Constance Collier were making Broadway history with "Peter Ibbetson." . . . Every night at Yaphank a bunch of the boys would gather around a piano-player named Irving Berlin and sing themselves hoarse. . . . And soldiers and sailors in uniform were admitted half price to see the Rialto hit, "The Man Who Came Back."

Jess Willard was the heavyweight champ and announced he'd defend his title against anybody, but the proceeds of the bout must go to the Red Cross. . . . Francis Ouimet got a furlough to play a 36-hole golf match against "Chick" Evans and won.

The big scandals in the army were that shoes didn't fit; there weren't uniforms, blankets or rifles enough to go around; and there was a shortage of machine guns and ammunition. . . . War atrocity stories had the boys (and girls) gasping.

Listen World!

Design for Dying

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SO YOU'RE sick of all this terrible war news—this tiresome talk about taxes and unemployment. Seems as if there wasn't a pleasant thing left to talk about. Yet if you refuse to talk, people think you're dumb.

You're sick, too, of all these changes—these new ideas, all this criticism and challenge. Life has certainly become one big headache. How you wish you could get away from it all. Go off to some peaceful place—a desert island, maybe—where you'd never be bored or bothered again, where you could live as you please without someone or something everlastingly pestering you.

Is that how you feel these days? Probably. A lot of us do. But actually "this tiresome talk," these "changes and challenges" which you so resent are actual lifesavers for which you should be eternally grateful.

I ran across the following passage, recently. It's from Gwethalyn Graham's thoughtful book, "Swiss Sonata"—Scribners, Publishers. A fine and frank young teacher is speaking of school life and its perils.

"There's something sterile and static about a school," she says. "Something that creeps into you and changes you without your knowing it. Eventually the place comes to stand between you and the uncomfortable business of living and adapting yourself to others. In a school, you don't have to adapt yourself, because it's so easy to make others adapt themselves to you."

Chances are you'll agree with that—even enthusiastically, if you happen to remember some Ole Mcanic of a teacher. But don't crow too quickly! It's quite as easy to become arrogant and ossified in a home or office as in a schoolroom.

ANY "DESIGN FOR LIVING" THAT LEAVES YOU COMPLACENT AND UNDISTURBED IS A DESIGN FOR DYING.

The first law of life is change. Even the humble turnip is bound by that law. Every flourishing vegetable is struggling, changing, adapting itself to new conditions. The day that struggle stops, death begins. And the same rule goes for every human being.

IF WE WANT TO POSSESS LIFE OR ENJOY LIFE WE MUST KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION.

Which sounds a lot easier than it is! For there's a strange rebellion in all of us against speed or pressure, conflict or competition. Science says that we all, unconsciously, want to die. Which is merely a more spectacular way of saying that we are afraid to live . . . that we dread life's rough impact on our laziness, cowardice and conceit, and try in every way to avoid it.

You've seen that happening. People retreating from life . . . seeking escapes in hobbies or invalidism or pressure-proof programs. And you've also seen the dreary results. Minds that haven't known a new idea for years. Queer, warped creatures who can't stand criticism, who develop "persecution complexes" if questioned. Petty tyrants and cannibalistic neurotics who get a synthetic satisfaction out of dominating other lives.

DON'T TRY TO GET AWAY FROM IT ALL!

PRAY FOR . . . FIGHT FOR . . . A WIDER AND MORE DIFFICULT EXISTENCE RATHER THAN A NARROW, EASY ONE.

You wouldn't deliberately smother yourself to death with feathers, would you? Then don't do it with an easy, insulated life. Seek change and challenge, force yourself to face it.

IF YOU HAVEN'T GOT TROUBLE, LOOK FOR IT!

P. S. Personally, I never had to look very far. As a trouble-attracter I've got more come-hither than a dozen Lamours!

New Word Needed.

What this country needs, now that a number of acceptable five-cent cigars are on the market, is a new word for propaganda.

As the learned director of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis just has informed the Economic Club, this is a widely abused word. In all the dictionaries it is defined as any systematic effort to gain support for a particular opinion or course of action. Correctly used, it implies no evil, no dishonesty or intent to deceive.

Yet when we say nowadays, as we so often do, "Beware of Propaganda," we always mean to warn against dishonest, deceitful propaganda. That has become the common, accepted usage of the word. Propaganda that is not dishonest or deceitful simply is no longer propaganda.

It is to late to go back to the dictionary definition. For years the word has kept bad company and now pays the penalty. A brand new word is needed.—Detroit News.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Unity Plea as Precedent Breaks; Labor Peace to Be Roosevelt Aim

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

FOR the first time in history, American voters had a clear-cut chance, on Tuesday, to express themselves directly on the third term. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was seeking one. They granted his request.

About 55 per cent of the voters combined to give him a 449 to 82 electoral sweep over Wendell Willkie.

But Mr. Roosevelt, conscious that he was treading on tradition, had promised:

"There is a great storm raging now; it makes things harder for the world. I would like to stick by these people of ours until we reach the clear, sure footing ahead. We will make it—make it before the next term is over.

"When that term is over there will be another president, and many more presidents in the years to come. . . ."

Hull Sees Significance...

By the vote, Americans seemingly sought to insure the continuation of all aid to Britain "short of war," a firm stand against the policies and acts of aggressor, and Pan-American cooperation to strengthen the Western Hemisphere.

Cordell Hull, secretary of state, commented: "It is a matter of profound significance that our foreign policies, the basic features of which were supported by both the leading candidates for president, were given yesterday nationwide approval."

Germans professed unconcern over the results, said they had taken an "almost sportive interest" in the election. But Japanese expressed misgivings that it meant a strong go-ahead signal for all FDR policies, including measures against Japan. Chinese danced in the streets.

In this hemisphere, Mexico and Argentina, for instance, showed obvious pleasure at the results. And Canadian restraint during the campaign to avoid the appearance of meddling gave way to expressions of immense relief.

Willkie Urges Unity.

Both Republicans and Democrats urged that campaign bitterness be forgotten.

William Allen White, noted Republican and editor, suggested public bonfires of campaign buttons and literature.

Former Postmaster General Farley said: "The excitement of the campaign must not blind our eyes to the dangers of the perilous world. . . . Now, perhaps more than ever before in history, the United States has need for national unity."

A rally for the "unity of America" was held next night in New York. Alf Landon, for the Republicans and Attorney General Jackson for the Democrats, were among the speakers.

Wendell Willkie delayed conceding his defeat until Wednesday though his running mate, Senator McNary did so soon after midnight Tuesday. On Wednesday Willkie broadcast:

"I accept the result of the election with complete good will. I shall . . . work for the unity of our people."

Defense Job For Willkie?

Reports persisted in Washington that FDR might ask his vanquished opponent to assume an important post in the defense program.

Disgruntled Vice-President Garner and Democratic Senator Ellison "Cotton Ed" Smith didn't vote.

And some labor leaders began reminding John L. Lewis of his promise to resign as head of the CIO if Roosevelt won. Others thought Lewis should be drafted to stay at his job.

Election results (and FDR) encouraged the notion that new efforts will be made to end the AFL-CIO schism. If Lewis resigns his non-salary job as head of CIO he'll still have his $25,000-a-year job as head of the mine workers. His likely successor as CIO chief will be soft-spoken pro-Roosevelt Phil Murray, vice-chairman of the CIO.

Quotes

Alfred M. Landon: "In a world of unfriendly nations, all Americans aware of the totalitarian intolerance must set an example of united purpose in the defense of the republic."

Strange Love.

It was Spaniards who first brought Western civilization—often in its bloodiest, greediest form—to most of the hemisphere south of Georgia. Though they were later chased out, Spanish remains the official language of all Latin American republics except Brazil. Indications now are that the Axis strategy in penetrating Latin America is to let Spain be the front man. Spain is to become Latin America's spiritual leader.

This week Spain created a "Council of Hispanicism" which will show Latin Americans "that they are our brothers." The newspaper Arriba explained that Spain now feels a fatherly love for America.

Eyes on Martinique.

Along the least protected route of invasion to the Panama canal, in the Caribbean, lies the colorful French isle of Martinique. A huge French aircraft carrier, the Bearn, is anchored there and is loaded with American-made warplanes that were consigned to France before that nation collapsed.

The U. S. has kept a wary eye on the island, ship, and planes since totalitarian France has been cooperating so avidly with Herr Hitler. This week, as tense notes passed between Vichy and Washington, U. S. warships steamed toward Martinique. And air reinforcements arrived at Puerto Rico.

Why Do We Say 'Phiz'?

Beyond the fact that both mean "face," let it be stated forthwith and forthrightly that there is no connection whatsoever — despite apparently authoritative ventures to the contrary—between the English "phiz" and the French visage.

"Phiz," sometimes written "phyz," is a colloquial and characteristically American abbreviation of "physiognomy."

Deriving from several Greek words meaning "to know nature," physiognomy is the science or art—by which much store used to be set—of adducing character and mental qualities from the features.

Master Mind.

Men behind the scenes in a position to test Roosevelt election victories with political X-rays are now telling each other "I told you so."

Trend Reversed.

When Roosevelt swamped Landon in 1936, Republican membership in congress went to a record low. In 1938 the GOP fought back to gain 80 seats in the house, four in the senate. Party planners heralded a return of the Republican "trend," and in 1940, spoke also of a "Willkie trend."

But the voice of President (love-a-good fight) Roosevelt came back to the hustings in 1940, and the trends of 1938 and 1940 collapsed. Although the Republican rout of 1936 was not repeated, Democrats held to their majority in congress.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday November 10.

Sunday's horoscope presages some rather peculiar or strange circumstances which may be exciting as well as intriguing and may be baneful or propitious according to the strategy with which they are manipulated. The mind may run into wierd channels and if obsessed by erratic notions, some treacherous contacts may be made. Shun questionable and suspicious persons and ideas. Brilliant thinking and literary output should be highly profitable.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year in which peculiar or intriguing predicaments may have to be unraveled by sound sense and great precaution against being ensnared by tricky, illicit and nefarious schemes. Delusion and bewilderment should give way to the sound creative urges of a stimulated mind.

A child born on this day should have a splendid mental equipment fitting it for outstanding professional or business success. But there are lures of a queer, tricky and pernicious nature to be kept in subjection. It will be impressionable and given to great subtlety and idiosyncracies.

For Monday, November 11.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of great activity and probably much excitement with the energies and mentality quickened to high tension. All the faculties directed toward important programs should culminate in brilliant performance, with results of enduring success. Matters in connection with groups, fraternities, public, political or diplomatic bodies should flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a constructive and highly lucrative year, with their own brilliant faculties pitched to the heights of genius or spectacular performance at its source. The danger lies in an over-enthusiastic, optimistic or extravagant urge to "plunge" or overdo. Curb runaway forces and faculties. Take time to think before leaping into extremes.

A child born on this day may have remarkable intellectual faculties, backed up by great energy, initiative and ingenuity. Such qualities are likely to be exaggerated, high pressured into extravagance and dangerous extremes.

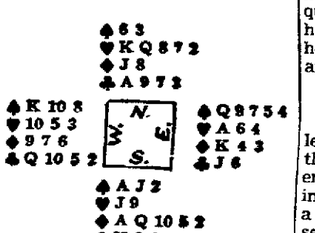
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BLAME ONLY YOURSELF

Many players are prone to blame their own hard luck for what occurs to them—not only hard luck in the way that opposing cards are located, but in the way that the opponents played the cards. How often we hear someone say, in effect, "If he hadn't made that lead against me, I would have made my contract." Perhaps he could have made his contract anyway, by a bit more astuteness.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥	1 ♠
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Let's take what happened about this contract at several duplicate tables. At one West made the worst spade lead of all, the K. South won with the A, led a heart to East's A, took the next spade when East underled the Q, then ran all the rest of the tricks, counting a successful diamond finesse, and so made three overtricks. At another table it was the same except that, after East won with his heart A, he cashed the spade Q before leading to South, who therefore made only two overtricks.

At a third table West led the spade 8, the Q losing to the A. South sent a heart to the A and East returned a spade. West getting two tricks but blocking the suit, so that South made one overtrick.

At a fourth table West led the spade 10, the best lead. The Q covered and lost to the A. When East won then with the heart A, he led his spade 5 to the J and K, and West returned the 8 to the 9, giving East a chance to run enough spade tricks to set the contract.

Poor South was downcast about being the only player who encountered that defense. But it was his own fault. When East returned the spade 5, he might have played low. West could have won that trick with the 8 or K. If with the latter, he would than have had to present South a trick with the J, and if he won it with the 8, his K would have blocked the suit and South therefore would have made his contract plus an overtrick. But suppose East had held the K and returned that 5 anyway? Then South's play would have been the J. That raises the question of how likely East would have been to do that with such a holding. Your guess is as good as anyone's else.

Do you understand the type of lead-throwing end-play whereby the declarer is unable to find an entry to one or more set-up cards in the dummy except by making a defender lead to them? Can you set up an example of it?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I looked up at Dicky with the feeling that I had been suddenly dropped into an English garden maze with the exits carefully confused.

"Whatever in the world?" I asked banally. "Helena Brixton is the vaguest person on earth, but she really has surpassed herself this time."

Dicky settled himself more comfortably in his arm chair, stretched himself, cat fashion, and put his hands behind his head.

"Would it help if you read the screed aloud to me," he asked. "I know you're not 'ear-minded' but I am, and I can get all I need from the sound of your lovely voice."

I wrinkled my nose at him, he grinned back comfortably, and, picking up the letter again, I read its opening paragraph to him.

"Do you see what I mean?" I asked.

He nodded, and spoke slowly, as if he were thinking aloud.

"All Marion's fault," he repeated slowly. "Well! Helena has a famous precedent for that accusation."

He paused, and I looked at him provocatively.

"What is a stooge supposed to ask at this point?" I asked.

"Depends on what kind you are," he retorted. "If you're playing the Mrs. Malaprop role, you might ask 'What President? Grant?'"

I threw a small pillow at him, and he dodged expertly.

"I know you," he said with pretended ruefulness. "You won't go on until I've explained. Your literal mind and insatiable curiosity must be gratified, so I'll refer you to Holy Writ which tells you of a famous alibi which Adam gave to the seprent, whereby he placed all the blame on feminine shoulders. Mothers-in-law, actual and prospective—with some notable exceptions, I grant you—have been doing it ever since, and Helena appears to have the technique down fine. Now will you read on? I might remind you that we shan't have this sanctuary many more minutes. If Mother finds out I've arrived, and haven't paid my respects to her pronto, you know what will happen."

"Fortunately," I told him smiling, "she has not yet finished her afternoon nap."

He settled farther into the chair cushions.

"Then we're safe," he said, "unless—how long will the boys be busy with those plants?"

"Until sundown—nearly. I was hurrying to get them in before dark."

"When an inconvenient husband interrupted," he teased.

"Dicky!" I expostulated. "You know—"

"Sure I know," he returned, smiling at me. "But before we return to our muttons—especially that temperamental ewe, Helena, tell me why this unprecedented interest in gardening on the part of the boys. Is it inheritance from the distaff side of the family. They don't take it from me, as you very well know."

"It's a Boy Scouts influence," I explained. "The scoutmaster has made arrangements with a local florist, to furnish the boys with flats of different seedlings already to plant. They get them at wholesale price, sell them at retail, and the Scouts get the profit."

"And you fell for it, hard," Dicky said with a teasing grin.

"I was glad of the opportunity," I said. "I've tried so many times to get certain plants started early enough in the seed beds. I ordered a number of flats, stipulating that I would furnish the seeds. Now I have heliotrope, stocks, snapdragons, verbenas, seed dahlias—"

Dicky put up a protesting hand.

"I'll take your word for it," he said. "You might as well be reciting the Greek alphabet. Go on with your letter. No wait! I hear our Katie's calliope voice calling you and coming ever nearer. You'll have to wait to hear what she wants."

The next instant my faithful housekeeper's knock sounded on the door, and when she came in, she delivered a breathless message in the absurd, laughable phraseology, which I long ago gave up trying to correct.

"Oh! Meesis Graham!" she gurgled. "Meesis Underwood, she on vire, say she vant to talk mit you qveek und I hoont all oler for you. You please coom qveek."

CHAPTER XXXIII

Philip followed her in to the telephone; Jocelyn squared him about in the hall.

"Philip, what happened! I waited and waited, watching for you to get back. I was so afraid something had gone wrong."

"What would go wrong?" he asked, genuinely surprised. "I was there only over 15 minutes, then I went on to the Bickford's."

"Oh, Philip, you didn't! You couldn't have played poker!"

* * *

"I did. Lucky, too. Sweetheart, I've got to go back. You try for Mrs. Sears. I promised my mother I'd play until someone else arrived. Now, darling," Philip said soothingly, "the easier you take these things the easier everyone else does. For a few days men will say to me, 'Nasty business, that maniac killing himself on your place, and I'll say, 'I wish I'd let the poor devil have the few hundred he wanted.'"

"But the papers will get it, Phil!"

"The papers have got it, dear, all over the front pages. But what they've got is nothing, and your name isn't mentioned. And by tomorrow it's old news and they wouldn't touch it with a ten-foot pole."

"Phil," she said gratefully, "you're the most wonderful person I ever knew. If you knew the night I had, and then to come out and see you all playing bridge on the very spot where poor Kent—" She stopped on a shudder.

"I wish I'd known you were awake. I looked up at your window, but it was dark. Don't worry about it, Jocelyn. A person who will commit suicide for one thing will commit it for another. It's the best thing all around. He wasn't happy, and I don't know that he ever would have been, and now he won't worry you again."

"What did you do with—with him?"

"They took him to the police station, identified him and his gun, and will send the body to Portland today. Lorenz tetstified at the coroner's inquest this morning that he had walked in without being announced, andat his office, they said that he had been worried over business and was in a nervous condition."

"And that's—that's all?"

"That's all. Except that our announcements went to the papers this morning."

"Phil, you didn't send them!"

"Of course I sent them. So you'll have plenty to do in no time at all. Telegrams and letters and presents."

"I want to go back to my aunt today. I've little enough time, and we'll have to concentrate not only on my wedding but on Tot's, too. Things go on just the same"

"I'll take you over tomorrow. Certainly, things go on. Now I'll go back and double three hearts again. You try for Mrs. Sears."

Jocelyn obediently went to the telephone.

"Wasn't that an awful thing that happened there last night?" demanded Mrs. Sears, cheerfully, after enthusiastically accepting the invitation to come and play cards with Sir Tommy.

The days went by. Jocelyn was at home with her aunt in Sausalito, busy about Tot's wedding and talking of her own plans. She was back in San Mateo for a dinner at the Wilsons' magnificent place; she and Phil were toasted, and it all seemed strange and wonderful. She and Philip lunched together every day. Their laughter, their delight in their plans and in each other's company were insatiable.

They lingered over luncheon in the big hotels, and women came up to offer them congratulations, and Phil was incessantly bowing and smiling in every direction. Gentle Mrs. French had asked them to dine with her on their last night but one. Jocelyn's aunt had claimed the wedding eve; but she and Philip loved the Frenches, and Jocelyn went down to Hill Acres for the appointed night, taking with her the prettiest of her new evening gowns.

It really seemed as if it might be going to happen now. It really began to seem as if she and Phil might be going to get married. The whole household knew it, and while no changing of proportions or actual redecorating had been done, a beautiful room next to Mrs. Fordyce's own had already been selected by Philip for his and his wife's apartment, and Jocelyn was escorted to it on this occasion by Lena, who was all agog with excitement at the turn of affairs.

"We're going to be happy in this room, Phil," she said, standing at the window and looking down at the drive.

Philip, just behind her, his arm about her, put a kiss on the tip of her ear. "I'm kind of glad we're staying in the old place. It'll be good for Norma."

"You cabled her?"

"I cabled her today. She should have had our letters, but I thought it was a good idea. We'll have an answer in the morning. Do you want to rest or read or anything?"

"Rest! I can't rest even at night. I'm apparently wound up to the point where I can't run down."

"Then let's ride; it's cooler now. And we'll stop in at the club and see who's there and get home about seven to dress. How's that?"

"Like everything else, it's perfect."

So they walked up to the stables, and Jocelyn was mounted on the gentle bay horse she had ridden several times before, and Philip on his own big cob, and they paced their horses slowly under the trees and in and out of the patches of late sunshine, through the watered gardens, and up toward the more open country, and the oak trees in the hill meadows. Jocelyn rode merely by staying on and holding the reins, but she loved it, and was eager to learn.

They went in to the big gates of the country club and rode up past the steps, and two men stopped them and said pleasant things of the approaching event. Even at six o'clock figures were moving far away on the links; there was an air of leisure and beauty and pleasure everywhere, and Jocelyn liked it.

Dressing in her big room, loitering over her bath and the arrangement of her hair, had its own charm too, and when at quarter to eight Philip knocked at her door, and she stepped forth in one of the gowns that had been originally intended for the Hawaiian trip, she would have changed places with nobody in the world.

"Jocelyn, you are so beautiful," he said. "I'm going to be a proud man tonight."

"Unless they ask me to play bridge."

"They won't. Ann French doesn't play bridge; she hates it. And it won't be late; she promised me that. I told her you were going to Sausalito tomorrow early, and naturally she knows that the day before your wedding is going to be exciting."

* * *

Mrs. Fordyce was giving a small dinner, with two tables of bridge to follow, that night; and they looked into the dining room when they went downstairs, and Jocelyn, smiling shyly at the guests, thought that she would be real mistress at this time day after tomorrow, and that she would be Philip's wife, and felt her breath come fast. Philip's wife, always to be with him! Even now it didn't seem true.

ASHLAND CO-EDS MAKING BOW TO SADIE HAWKINS

Rittman Youth Elected as Typical 'Lil Abner' For Occasion.

From the numerous "Lil Abners" on the hilltop campus Jim Poe, Rittman, has been chosen as the typical "Lil Abner" by the Ashland College co-eds. All of it is part of the Sadie Hawkins week-end celebration held on the campus this week-end.

During the three days of the celebration the co-eds are given the opportunity to ask the men for dates. The co-eds will take over the entire responsibility of the dating including calling for their dates, providing for the entertainment and standing all expenses.

Poe was chosen in an election held by the co-eds to represent Lil Abner. Plans are being made for a race similar to that in Sadie Hawkins day between the halves of the football game this evening.

The co-eds have been saving their pennies for weeks for these three days when the tables will be turned and likewise the males have been 'oh so nice' and looking their handsomest in order to secure the attention of the fairer sex. The only catch to the affair is that the rules state that no girl shall have more than one date with the same fellow during that time which will make it a little hard on the girls who are "going steady."

There was provision made in the rules for the asking of dates to begin Thursday at 4:00 but most of the anxious co-eds jumped the guns and started a couple of days early.

Last evening a rally for the game and for the week-end celebration was held at Redwood stadium while the team practiced under the lights. The cheerleaders, Marilyn Holland, Ashland, Bob Soka, Polk, and Mary Elizabeth King, Oakville, Ind., kept the rally lively with cheers. Dr. M. P. Puterbaugh, dean of students gave a pep talk and Betty Brugh, Massillon was awarded a prize for the best recipe for preserved turnips.

MANSFIELD Y. W. C. A. TO JOIN 'FELLOWSHIP' WEEK PROGRAM

The Mansfield Y. W. C. A. will join cities throughout the world in observing World Fellowship week which starts Sunday and continues through Nov. 16.

This event has been observed all over the world where there are Y. W. C. A. units and in 51 different countries, for a number of years, but this year there will be special prayers for the associations which have "gone into silence" in the conquered lands of Europe.

If these associations are still functioning the World Council has no direct communication with them, according to Miss Lucy Wakeland, general secretary of the Mansfield association. This is paticularly true in the case of the associations of Norway, Denmark, Poland, Rumania, Belgium, The Netherlands, Czechoslovakia and the associations in the belligerent countries.

Only in the United States, Canada and South American countries are the Y. W.'s functioning normally, she said. These associations will raise a national emergency fund, first contributions to be sought during World Fellowship week.

Mrs. Paul Tappan, a member of the local board of trustees, is chairman of the Mansfield committee on the emergency fund. Contributions may be mailed or brought to the Y. W. C. A. next week.

A service of meditation and commemoration for the Y. W. C. A.'s around the world will be held at the Y. W. building at 2 p. m. Nov. 15. The service will be brief, Miss Wakeland said, and is open to all members and friends of the Y. W.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Olivia DeHavilland came into the studio restaurant, sat down at our table, and barked like a dog.

The effect was wonderful. You have to get the picture: Demure little Olivia, looking like a doll in an outfit adapted from the Austrian peasant mode. She was in red and white, with apron and ruffles, and red felt strawberries on her straw handbag and hat. And sitting down and barking like a dog.

The bark, which was by request, was symbolic. Or maybe it wasn't. Anyway, it was magic. Jimmy Cagney and sister Jean, at a corner table, were convulsed. Frank Capra and friends, at another, were convulsed. Everybody was convulsed, including Olivia who blushingly justified the bark by explaining: "They asked me to, really they did!"

That was true. I'd never heard her bark like a dog. So I suggested after Olivia had ordered a slight meal of three cheps potatoes carrots corn peas and salad, "When are you going to bark like a dog?"

"You really want me to?" she said.

"Of course. Now."

She did, and it was. I may have mentioned this before. Wonderful.

* * *

If the bark symbolized anything it was only that Olivia has found dignity a bit wearing. A few weeks ago she came into the same restaurant, looking haggard and worn, her brow furrowed. "I've a date with Irving Rapper for lunch. I'm starving. I haven't any money, and I can't find him," she said. She went to the telephone called the auto gate, said "This is Miss DeHavilland. Has Mr. Rapp—?"

Mr. Rapper, the unpunctual dialogue director, hadn't.

"A few years ago," an old friend commented, "she would have said, 'This is Olivia.'"

When Olivia returned looking hungrier, the old friend asked, "When are you going to bark like a dog in this restaurant?"

"I don't know," said Miss DeHavilland, "but soon—I think."

* * *

So today, it came to pass, Olivia by request explained she undertook barking a long time ago when sister Joan Fontaine had pneumonia.

"Joan had a little toy dog. When you pulled its tail, it barked. She loved it. One day she pulled out the last bark. To keep her happy, I learned to bark."

So you see Olivia was gay today, telling about this and other things. Maybe it's love, although not for Errol Flynn, certainly. She said she was bored with Errol, Errol was bored with her, both of them were bored with Mike Curtiz. Being "married" five times in five years was too much. They were going to ask Jack Warner for a "divorce." (They had just been "married" again in "Santa Fe Trail.")

But the other boys? Was Jimmy Stewart still No. 1? Olivia smiled and blushed and evaded prettily. Or was it Franchot Tone or any of the other boys who have been gallanting her about?

"They're wonderful all of them," she pronounced.

The telephone rang for Miss DeH, and she said "Oh hel-lo-o-o. Yes? Of course I'd love to. . . . Dinner first? Seven o'clock."

She didn't say 'darling' once, but it was in her voice. I reckon J. Stewart is still No. 1.

Rams Trip Birds

Club Makes Extra Points In Registering 14-12 Gridiron Triumph.

By CHARLES MARTIN
(News-Journal Sports Editor.)

THEIR ability to convert extra points after touchdowns enabled the victory-hungry Madison high Rams to register their initial triumph of the season before a homecoming gathering of 750 under the arcs at Madison field last night.

* * *

Taking advantage of every break and playing spectacular football, the Rams marked up a 14 to 12 win over a favored Loudonville high school combine.

* * *

It was the Rams first win in nine games and brought their season to a close with considerable satisfaction. Loudonville held the edge in almost every department of the fray, but couldn't turn back the determined Madison outfit.

Coach Al Fendrick's proteges struck pay in the second and third stanza after spotting the Red Birds to a 6-0 lead.

Russel Price, varsity tackle, provided the Rams with their first touchdown midway in the third chapter after a thrilling 68-yard march. Harold Hammer carried the pigskin over the goal line from the Loudonville 14, but he fumbled and Price fell on the ball for the score.

Hammer calmly dropped back and shot a perfect strike to Bob Heichel for the extra point and the Rams were out in front. But the lead didn't last long.

Loudonville came roaring back and after four first downs, Lawrence Etzwiler, Red Bird fullback, slashed off tackle for his club's second marker from the one-yard stripe.

But Madison was not to be denied. Three downs in the fourth moved the Rams 41 yards to the Loudonville 15 Paul Wynn snatched Hammer's aerial on the two and scored standing. Hammer added one point with a dash off his own left tackle, and the Rams were out in front to stay.

After a scoreless opening frame, the Red Birds broke loose with a passing atack that enabled them to score their first touchdown.

Aided by a 15-yard penalty against the Rams the Red Birds scored when Veach heaved a pass to Darling standing in the end zone. Etzwiller tried both extra points with drop kicks, but they were wide.

Loudonville out-gained the Rams, registering 15 first downs to eight. The Red Birds had seven from passing, seven from rushing and one on a penalty. Madison secured seven from rushing plays and two on aerials.

NEW YORK —(NS— A syndicate, headed by Amory L. Haskell, president of the National Horse show, today announced plans for development of a race track in New Jersey, the first under the recently passed act, creating the New Jersey Racing commission and providing for the operation of horse racing and pari-mutuel betting in that state.

The syndicate has filed application with the commission for a permit to build a track, known as Monmouth park, at Oceanport, near Long Branch, N. J. The cost is estimated at $150,000 and the park is expected to be ready by June 16, 1941.

Shelby Shares Crown

Shelby High Registers 27-6 Win Over Galion In NCO Conference.

GALION—The Shelby high school Whippets today, for the second time within three years, shared the North Central Ohio conference gridiron championship.

Shelby gained a part of the title here under the lights at Heise park last night by handing the Galion high Orangemen a 27 to 6 beating before a crowd of 1,500, made up mostly of Shelby rooters.

IN SERT TO KUM ..

This marks the second time in the past three years that Shelby has tied for first place in the N. C. O. race. Last year they finished in second place.

Shelby, with one more game to play this year, against Mansfield next Saturday, has a record of seven wins and one defeat, the lone setback coming at the hands of Marion for Shelby's only conference loss of the season.

The contest was the final one of the season for Galion, who finished in last place in the conference, failing to win a single league tilt. Shelby has one more game on its schedule. The Whippets play host to Mansfield next Saturday afternoon.

Trailing early in the second period 6 to 0, the Whippets came back in the same quarter to score one touchdown to gain the lead.

A 63-yard run by Laube around right guard, accounted for Shelby's first score midway in the second period. Bill Daugherty kicked the extra point. The Whippets' second touchdown came early in the third period when Whitney went over from the four-yard stripe after a 60-yard drive down the field. Daugherty's place kick was good.

Recovery of two Galion fumbles accounted for Shelby's final two touchdowns. Midway in the final period Bonecutter recovered the ball on his own 12, and after an 88-yard drive scored. Daugherty's place kick was wide.

The second recovered fumble came in the last minute of play when Whitney recovered on the 35, and after a series of plays Bonecutter went over from the six. A Bonecutter to Laube pass was good for the extra point.

Dewalt scored for Galion early in the second period from the three-yard marker after an 80-yard drive put the ball in scoring position. The try for extra point was no good.

There is a possibility of a three-way tie for the crown Shelby now shares the title with Bucyrus who last night defeated Ashland 20 to 14. Marion and Mt. Vernon play at Mt. Vernon this afternoon. If Marion wins this contest Marion, Shelby and Bucyrus will tie for the lead.

Deer Me, Can You Bear to Hear This Tale?

Was their hunting trip successful? Well, these Boston businessmen came home from New Brunswick with a 700-pound black bear, a smaller bear and eight deer. They spent a week in the woods. The hunters include, left to right, Jay Bushway, Ralph Starkweather, Vince Wilbur, Dick Summers and Robert Likens. Come on over for a deer dinner, boys.

Dickey May Be In Race

CLEVELAND—(U P)—The name of Bill Dickey, shrewd New York Yankee catcher, was tossed into the Cleveland baseball manager possibility pool today by Frank Gibbons of the Cleveland Press.

* * *

Gibbons wrote that Dickey "was brought into the picture today as a sheer guess, nothing more, but the Yankee catcher would fit the situation so ideally he was considered a possibility."

* * *

Alva Bradley, president of the Indians, was still in the east and today attended the Cornell-Yale football game. He stated yesterday there was an "unknown" candidate in the field for the job of bossing the tempermental Tribe next season.

Regarded as the best bets to succeed Oscar Vitt were Roger Peckinpaugh, who once held the job and then was fired, and Luke Sewell, Indian coach.

* * *

Gibbons said the Yankees would not be likely to stand in the way of a managerial assignment for their veteran catcher who slowed up definitely last season. Dickey's presence on the Cleveland roster would enable the club to trade off second string backstop Frankie Pytlak for an outfielder.

Bradley plans to announce his choice for a new manager at a luncheon on Tuesday.

NEW LONDON WALLOPS ELYRIA HIGH RESERVES

NEW LONDON—Scoring three touchdowns in the final period here yesterday afternoon, the New London Wildcats wound up their home season by handing the Elyria high juniors a 35 to 13 defeat.

New London's fourth quarter scoring spree was featured by a 51-yard run by Evans, halfback, and a 60-yard touchdown run by Iceman, fullback, after intercepting an Elyria pass on his own 40-yard stripe.

Ashland Scores Victory

College Combine Registers Initial Win Over Rio Grande, 6 to 0.

(By Associated Press)

ASHLAND college waited until the last game of the season for its first victory of 1940.

* * *

Playing before a home crowd in weather too cold for spectator comfort, Ashland scored a first period touchdown on a fumble and a pass to beat Rio Grande college, 6 to 0, last night.

* * *

The loss was the fifth straight for Rio Grande, which has failed to score a point this season.

Ashland's lone tally came when Fullback Deems recovered a wild Rio Grande pass from center and Don Sowers, left halfback, caught a forward pass in the end zone.

Interest in Ohio grid battles today centered at Tiffin where Muskingum attempted to take Heidelberg from the pinnacle of the Ohio conference.

Heidelberg's chances for a sixth straight conference victory skidded somewhat with the announcement that Lou Cellini, veteran guard from Crestline, suffered last night what was believed to be an attack of appendicitis.

Fenton Wolfe, student prince halfback and one of the state's leading scorers, already is out of action because of injuries

Muskingum, 1939 champion, has lost one of its three league tilts.

Western Reserve and Ohio university provide another leading attraction at Cleveland today. Reserve has been beaten once and Ohio university tied twice.

A plucky Akron university eleven meets Kent State university at Akron. The Staters have won seven straight to pace Heidelberg in the Ohio conference.

The state's other unbeaten teams, Wittenberg and Wilberforce, take on Marietta and Kentucky State.

Crestline Club Drops Contest To Bellevue

Coach Hutson's Grid Forces Lose 7-0 Decision.

CRESTLINE — Crestline high held a highly favored Bellevue high grid machine to a 7-0 score here under the lights last night in a thrill-packed homecoming tilt witnessed by a crowd of some 1,800.

* * *

Neither team was able to get beyond the 20-yard line more than once during the first three periods, with Geiger of Bellevue and Maleno of Crestline furnishing most of the thrills with long gains.

* * *

Bellevue was in possession of the ball on Crestline's 38 as the fourth period opened, and in two successive plays Bellevue scored its lone touchdown.

The score came as result of a pass from Weithman to Heilman who ran 11 yards to score.

Maleno, Crestline captain, partially caught the ball but it fell into Heilman's hands.

* * *

Crestline drove to the Bellevue one yard line late in the game but failed to score on four attempts. Bellevue chalked up seven first downs to six for Crestline

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

Contrary to popular beliefs sharks do not have to turn belly up to bite. They feed right side up under water, and turn over when seizing surface objects only to avoid exposing themselves.

* * *

Hunters enjoy a new comfort and freedom of action in the new Red Head hunting coats, with Bi-swing back. Made of heavy army duck, with ample sized, blood-proofed game pockets, and plenty of other pockets. You can buy them at Yuncker's in a variety of styles, at only $1.95 up.

* * *

Coyotes have found their way to at least nine eastern states. With a small but active pack, now at large in New Jersey . . . a pack that killed 100 chickens on Hunterdon County poultry farms . . . the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service has reported that coyotes are committing depredations in Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, New York, Pennsylvania, and Maine.

* * *

The weight of a blue whale, the largest of the species, may reach 150 metric tons, or four times the estimated weight of the biggest prehistoric monsters, such as the dinosaur, and equal to the weight of 37 elephants or 150 fat oxen.

* * *

Rabbit and pheasant season starts next Friday, Nov. 15 and scores of hunters are all set for the opening day. In case YOU are not . . . better drop in at Yuncker's the first of the week and choose the things you will need from a stock so complete, that you can find everything except your dog.

* * *

After you're through fishing for the season tackle boxes should be emptied and wiped dry, and the contents neatly replaced. Flies and all feathered and bucktail lures should be protected from moths. Reels should be cleaned thoroughly and worn parts replaced, before storing away. Yuncker's carry repair parts for almost any make of reel.

Erstwhile Stars Make Up Lorain Squad For Tilt At Fairground.

HIGH SCHOOL and college gridiron players will make up the Lorain Police Barracks squad which invades Mansfield Sunday to face the Automotive Supply semi-pro combine in the second half of a doubleheader at the Fairground.

The Eagles Lodge Bantamweight outfit will tangle with the Akron Local No. 5 Bantamweight team in the opening game which is scheduled to get under way at 1:30 p. m.

Among the high school players in the Lorain lineup are Shotton, former Boston university kicking star; Pollock of Case; Connoni, Ohio Northern center, and Williams, colored backfield star from Wilberforce.

Heading the list of erstwhile high school players on the squad are Biber, former All-Lake Erie league end, and Kosonovich, all-league tackle; Gawlik, all-league end, who was the captain of the 1935 Lorain high school team, and Saltis, another Lorain high star.

The Lorain combine comes here sporting a record of five wins and three losses. On paper the invaders are a touchdown better than the Mansfielders.

The Supplies lost to the Canton Bulldogs early this season, 6 to 0, and Lorain later held them to a 6-6 tie. Mansfield beat the Sandusky Maroons, 14 to 6, and Lorain trounced Sandusky, 19 to 6.

* * *

Coach Earl McMullen and his athletes are not conceding the visitors anything and are out to register their third straight triumph of the season.

* * *

Mentor Hank Richards' bantamweights are set to even a score with the Summit county team. Akron recently chalked up a 6 to 0 win over the Mansfield eleven.

ISSUES DISPLAY BETTER TREND IN MART TODAY

Many Leaders Recovering In Early Tradings; Analysts Study Store Sales.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks displayed a moderately better tone in today's early market trading, many leaders recovering fractions to around a point.

In their search for market trend clues analysts studied the federal reserve board survey of the country's department store sales for the week ended Nov. 2 which disclosed a drop of 5 per cent under the corresponding 1939 period.

In the preceding week the year-to-year increase amounted to 6 per cent. One reason given for the decline was the probable preoccupation of customers with the closing phase of the election campaign.

TOWN HOUSE OF FDR FOR RENT

Maybe He Won't Need It for Next Few Years.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt's 15 room town house is for rent, Pease and Elliman, real estate brokers, said today.

All the furnishings have been removed, and the house may be leased for an indefinite term.

The house is situated at 49 East 65th street. Next door, and sharing a common entrance is the town house of Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, the president's mother. Around the corner, Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., and his wife, the former Ethel Du Pont, have a small apartment.

CONDITION GRAVE

LONDON —(AP)— The condition of former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who is gravely ill at his Hampshire home, was reported "unchanged" today.

He said that Britain's successful resistance and final victory had been proclaimed by all parties in America.

The prime minister said that Britain was deeply touched by the promise of material aid given during the campaign by Wendell Willkie in behalf of the Republican party.

Bomb Hits on Cruiser Claimed

BERLIN —(AP)— The German high command announced today that its Stuka dive bomber forces, on counter-blockade duty against Britain, scored two bomb hits on a 10,000-ton British cruiser yesterday, damaging it so that its "loss is suspected."

It was the second time in as many days that the high command had reported bomb hits on 10,000-ton British cruisers.

The daily communique said six merchant ships totaling 34,000 tons "were sunk with certainty" yesterday by aerial bombardment and two others totaling 7,000 tons "in all probability were destroyed."

"Stuka groups of General Field Marshal Kesselring again attacked shipping objectives and a convoy at sea in the region of the east coast of the British Isles and caused heavy damage to the enemy," the communique said.

Hangars and barracks at airports in Norfolk and Yorkshire were set afire, it was said, while industrial plants in Birmingham, Coventry, Liverpool, and docks and supply centers in London were scored against.

Brilliant Greek Strategy Cuts Off Italians In Pindus Mountains.

Ioannina, went deep into the mountains. The Greeks cut the column and closed the gap in the lines, isolating the invaders.

Italians Leaving Koritza Sector

SALONIKA, Greece — (AP) — Italian forces in Albania were reported to be withdrawing from the Koritza sector today in the midst of the heaviest fighting of the two-weeks-old Italian-Greek war.

Greek troops were said to be gaining the upper hand slowly, although they had made no large advances.

Meanwhile, a new batch of 260 Italian prisoners arrived in Salonika. Thirty-one of these were Alpinists, with feathers in their caps. Troops of this type formerly were stationed on the French front.

Greek guards accompanying the prisoners said they offered all their money and even wedding rings for food when captured.

Neutral observers took this as an indication that British and Greek naval action in the Adriatic was making it difficult for Italy to supply her Albanian troops.

There were consistent reports from Albania, even before the Fascist invasion of Greece, of a shortage of food there.

Buses, taxis and trucks for civilian use appeared on the streets for the first time today since transportation facilities were requisitioned at the start of the war.

A new decree called all officers 46 and 47 years of age for service and at the same time workers in several industries were assigned to making war materials.

Hungary Gets British Protest

BUDAPEST, Hungary — (AP) — British Minister Owen St. Clair O'Malley has informed Foreign Minister Istvan Csaky that "I cannot condone" continued passage of German troops through Hungary, legation officials disclosed today.

The O'Malley statement, made in an interview with the foreign minister, was not a formal protest requiring a formal answer, officials said, but demonstrated that the British government was cognizant of Nazi military activities "inside neutral Hungary."

Despite repeated denials by the Hungarian government, some observers in Rumania estimate an average of 10 German troop trains daily arrives in Rumania after passing through Hungary.

The steady growth of German armed forces in the Black Sea area has caused Balkan speculation as to whether the Nazis intend to launch a winter drive into Turkey as a development of the reputed Axis plan initiated with the Italian invasion of Greece.

Diplomatic circles in Budapest generally believe the Italian attack was premature. These circles compared the Norwegian and Greek campaigns as evidence that the Italians failed to follow the Nazi policy of careful preparation.

park he said, by making believe he had a gun.

"Did you have a gun?" Flohr asked.

"No," Eddie said, "but if I had, I woulda shot her."

But Vernon Cohen admitted "packed a rod," two in fact; one in his coat pocket, another tucked inside his waist where police would never think of looking, even if they found the first.

"I figgered I'd have a chance to shoot it out with the cops then," Vernon said.

Regarding the proposed police station robbery, Flohr quoted Eddie:

"We were going into report a stolen bicycle at night when only the desk sergeant was on duty. When he leaned over to reach the files down by the floor, we were going to 'conk' him with a gas pipe, then take the envelopes containing the prisoners' valuables."
